THIS LESSON IS ABOUT:

- BUSINESS IN DIFFERENT CULTURES

INTRODUCTIONS

1. What is your name?
 - My name is...
 - I'm...
2. Where do you live?
 - I live in...
3. Do you think that the culture in which you are immersed affects your approach to business?
4. What makes your culture so different from other ones?

Brainstorming

1. Have you ever negotiated with people having an extremely different culture?
2. Have you ever heard the phrase “culture clash”? What is a culture clash?

Get ready!

Before you read about company culture, talk about these questions:

1. What values do you think make a company successful?
2. What traits or actions can discourage customers from doing business with a company?

Take turns reading this poster about a company's values.

A poster for 'Software Plus' with a blue header and a green circle logo. The text is organized into columns, listing core values and company commitments. The logo 'Software plus' is in the top left, with 'plus' inside a green circle. Below it, the text 'OUR COMPANY'S CORE VALUES...' is written. To the right, a blue banner contains the text 'At Software Plus, we value our customers above all else. We want to:'. The main body of the poster is divided into two columns of bullet points. The left column lists core values, and the right column lists company commitments. The bottom of the poster features a small graphic of a sun and a tree.

Software plus
OUR COMPANY'S CORE VALUES...

At Software Plus, we value our customers above all else. We want to:

- provide quality products at affordable prices
- keep prices as low as possible so that our customers know they are getting a fair deal
- treat each customer as an individual
- strive to make every person who shops with us feel important and valued

Software Plus also recognizes innovation as a key part of our business. We will take steps to:

- stay one step ahead of the market
- monitor current trends and move quickly to fill gaps in the market

The employees of Software Plus are the company's greatest asset. As such, we endeavor to:

- provide a pleasant, friendly working environment
- supply training opportunities and perks
- foster professional growth and development

Environmental issues are a priority at Software Plus. We promise to:

- support a wide range of environmentally friendly initiatives, such as recycling and car sharing
- never knowingly create a product that is harmful to the environment

Read the summary of the text. Fill in the blanks with the correct words from the word bank.

Word BANK

products customers employees
market opportunities

The company 'Software Plus' has four core values. To begin with, it aims to put 1 _____ first. Secondly, it tries to stay ahead in the 2 _____ by identifying what is popular. Thirdly it treats its 3 _____ well by providing perks and training 4 _____. Finally, it never creates 5 _____ that harm the environment.

➤ How does the company value their customers? Tell the class.

Match the words with their definitions

- | | |
|----------------|---|
| 1. gap | a. a benefit people receive from their jobs |
| 2. perk | b. the most important thing to do |
| 3. trend | c. a new development |
| 4. opportunity | d. to try to do something |
| 5. innovation | e. a temporarily popular item or style |
| 6. endeavor | f. a place where something is missing |
| 7. priority | g. a chance to do something useful |

Think and answer.

1. In what ways do people greet each other in formal and informal situations?
2. What are some things foreigners might accidentally do that are offensive in your culture?

Read the passage and focus on the words in bold.

◀▶ Conducting Business Overseas

Conducting business overseas is full of pitfalls! There are many different customs regarding etiquette. You may make a major social gaffe without realizing it! This guide outlines the areas where mistakes commonly occur.

Consider how you will address your business associate. It is polite to address someone by their title and surname in many places.

The handshake is recognized worldwide, but in the States and Britain people generally shake hands only once, when they first meet. Be aware that in Japan, it is rude to make eye contact when shaking hands, and in many Asian countries it is customary to bow.

If you are invited to someone's house, you should take a gift to thank them for their hospitality. But be careful! Your choice of gift is very important. Avoid giving white flowers in Japan or clocks in China because they symbolize death. Be conscious of eating customs. In Europe and the States, you may offend your host if you leave food on your plate. However, in Asia, a clean plate indicates you are still hungry.

In conclusion, the best way to conduct business internationally is by researching manners and customs. Only this way can you ensure that you won't make a terrible social blunder!

Now, let's repeat and define the words in bold.

Provide your own definition of the words you know. Specify what type of words each one is: noun, adjective, or adverb.

1. pitfalls
2. etiquette
3. gaffe
4. title
5. customary
6. aware
7. blunder

Choose the correct answers.

Say four things you have learned from the text.

1. What should you not do when visiting Japan?

- a. give your host a gift

3. According to the passage, when do British people shake hands?

- a. when greeting business partners in the morning
- b. when first being introduced to someone
- c. when accepting a gift
- d. when entering someone's house

Choose the word which has the same meaning as the underlined one.

1. Looking his client in the eye when they shook hands was a major gaffe.

- a. blunder
- b. hospitality
- c. Host

2. Her manners were typically British.

- a. pitfall
- b. etiquette
- c. Hospitality

3. He was conscious that he must leave some food on his plate.

- a. aware
- b. customary
- c. eye contact

Choose the correct word pair to fill in the blanks.

1. Mr. Sui thanked his ____ for the wonderful ____ .

- a. title – surname
- b. host – hospitality
- c. hospitality – pitfall

2. ____ making eye contact because it may ____ the other person.

- a. customary – avoid

4. There are a number of ____ people can fall into such as not using a correct ____ .

- a. pitfalls – title
- b. hosts – surname
- c. hospitality – eye contact

You will read a dialogue between two managers. Read it aloud in pairs.

Manager 1: Helen, are you busy?

Manager 2: No, why?

Manager 1: I need some help with this poster for next month's job fair.

Manager 2: Sure, have a seat. What can I do?

Manager 1: Well, management wants a display that shows our core values. The problem is, the manual lists a lot of values, but I can only show four.

Manager 2: I'd start with customer care. You could write about how we keep our software affordable.

Manager 1: That's good, thanks. What do you think of including environmental issues, though?

Manager 2: Yeah, why not? You could mention a few of our environmental initiatives. Like our recycling program.

Manager 1: Good idea. But it's a job fair, and there's nothing about our employees yet. I should include something about them, right?

Manager 2: What do you have in mind?

Manager 1: Something like: "Our employees are our most important asset."

Manager 2: I like that. But I'd also put in something about our development program.

Manager 1: Oh, definitely. So I just need one more value. Any more ideas?

Manager 2: There's a big focus on innovation in the research department. And potential employees might like that.

Manager 1: Yes. Maybe, "We aim to stay one step ahead."

Manager 2: Sounds good.

Decide if the the following statements are (T) or false (F) according to the dialogue you read.

1. ___ The speakers are taking a trip to Japan together.
2. ___ The woman asks the man to explain parts of Japanese etiquette.
3. ___ The woman plans to purchase a gift before she arrives in Japan.

Focus on Grammar: Making a Suggestion

- Making a suggestion

A suggestion or recommendation is a good way of giving advice that isn't too direct. You can use the words 'suggest' or 'recommend' as in the example below.

*I would suggest making an effort.
I would recommend doing this instead.*

Use 'verb+ing' after 'suggest' or 'recommend' to explain your advice to the listener. To make these negative, put 'not' before your 'verb+ing'.

- ✓ In the dialogue, Manager 2 makes some suggestions to Manager 1 as follows:

I'd start with customer care.

I like that. But I'd also put in something about our development program.

- ✓ What is the full form of I'd start with...?

Focus on Grammar: Giving Advice

Should

We use “should” to give advice both in the present and in the past using the following structures:

subject + should + main verb (in the present)

And

should + have + past participle (in the past)

For example:

They should study more if they want to pass their exams.

They should have studied more if they wanted to pass their exams.

We can also use “should + not” to give advice on not doing something. The contraction is “shouldn’t”.

For example:

You should not smoke; it’s so bad for you!

Would

When we give advice using “would”, we are putting ourselves in the other person’s shoes. This means that we are giving hypothetical advice as if we were the listener, which is why we often say “if I were you” at the start of the sentence.

For example:

If I were you, I would choose the salad.

We can also use “would + not”, or the contracted form “wouldn’t”.

For example:

I would not go out at night without my friends.

I wouldn’t go shopping at the mall now; it will be full of people.

Giving Suggestions – Role Play

Take turns to play both roles in one of the different situations: 1,2, or 3. Start conversations to give suggestions.

Situations:

1. Student A is going to Japan.
2. Student A has been invited to a brunch at the American Embassy in Mexico.
3. Student A is going to India.

USE LANGUAGE SUCH AS:

Are you ready for your business trip?

I'm scared I'm going to ...

It's customary to ...

Student A: You are going on a business trip to another country. Explain to Student B that you are worried about:

- greeting people
- giving gifts

Student B: Your colleague is going on a business trip abroad and is worried about etiquette. Help Student A plan for his or her trip.

Cultural Sensitivity Check List

1. Understand your own culture and...
 - a. observing and analyzing other cultures.
2. Suspends judgement while...
 - b. common values, beliefs, goals, and attitudes.
3. Identify and share...
 - c. be aware of differences with others.
4. Respect differences and resist...
 - d. be inclusive – prefer “we” to “i” or “you.”
5. Use language sensitively;
 - e. keep trying however difficult it may be.
6. Be objective and positive;
 - f. the temptation to make converts.

Closing

1. Have you experienced similar situations, for example when working abroad or with different nationalities? Give examples of what went wrong, or how you avoided a clash.

Today we learned...

- ✓ To talk about different customary actions taken in different cultures.
- ✓ To talk about strategies to avoid cultural clash.
- ✓ To make suggestions in different traveling situations.
- ✓ To use would to give suggestions during a live conversation.
