THIS LESSON IS ABOUT:

- PRESENTATIONS AT WORK

Welcome!

- ✓ How have you been?
- ✓ Introduce yourself.
- ✓ Share something interesting about yourself with the class.

Discuss

1. What are the characteristics of a great speech / presentation?
2. Who are the greatest speakers that you can think of?
3. Who do you need to give presentations to as a part of your job? What are they about?

Presentation Language

Complete the following presentation excerpts using the words below. Write the number and word in the chat, we will need them for the next activity.

"Good morning, everybody. I hope you are all doing well today and I'd like to _____ you all for being here. Today I am here to _____ about our latest product, and more _____ about how it works and what it does. I'd also like to _____ the products' features and _____ inform you about where you can get it and how. _____, I'd like to briefly _____ our current marketing policy in Canada. _____, I'll _____ some of the problems we have encountered in our market share. _____, I'll _____ our progress this year and continue on with our main _____ for being here; the product."

Intonation in Delivering a Presentation

1. Read the same excerpt from the previous slide; focus on the use of proper sentence stress (stressing content words: nouns, main verbs, adjectives, adverbs), intonation, and tone of voice. Listen to the teacher, if necessary.
2. Read it again in a monotone voice (without stressing words and using intonation). Listen to the teacher, if necessary.
3. Discuss:
 1. Which speech was more effective? Why?

"Good morning, everybody. I hope you are all doing well today and I'd like to _____ you all for being here. Today I am here to _____ about our latest product, and more _____ about how it works and what it does. I'd also like to _____ the products' features and _____ inform you about where you can get it and how. _____, I'd like to briefly _____ our current marketing policy in Canada. _____, I'll _____ some of the problems we have encountered in our market share. _____, I'll _____ our progress this year and continue on with our main _____ for being here; the product."

Practice Intonation Patterns

Choose two or three of these phrases, and say with the “worst” and “best” possible stress and intonation, using the prompts on the right for each (1-1, 2-2, 3-3, etc.).

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. “Can I have your attention, please?” | 1. Worst – sound impatient and ordering people. Best – just the opposite. |
| 2. “Horrible weather, isn’t it?” | 2. Worst – Sound depressed and depressing. Best – Sound sympathetic. |
| 3. “So, let’s start by looking at...” | 3. Worst – sound like you can’t remember the topic or are reluctant to get started. Best – sound dynamic and eager to get started. |
| 4. “Right, let’s get started by...” | 4. Worst – sound too aggressive, like an army sergeant. Best – just the opposite. |
| 5. “If there are no questions so far...” | 5. Worst – don’t give people a chance to ask questions, and don’t sound keen to really answer any. Best – show you really are inviting questions and give people time to ask them. |
| 6. “Do you know how many people use our products?” | 6. Worst – make it sound like a genuine question, as if you don’t know the answer yourself. Best – catch people’s interest, with intonation clearly showing the answer is coming next. |
| 7. “I think this is a really interesting topic because...” | 7. Worst – sound bored. Best – sound interested yourself and stress words strongly. |
| 8. “Please put up your hands if... Wow, only two!” | 8. Worst – Sound disgusted or unbelieving. Best – just the opposite. |

How to deliver effective and successful presentations?

Match the qualities to their corresponding tips.

1. confidence

2. passion

3. knowledge

4. naturalness

5. organization

6. time-sensitive

7. clarity

- A. Identify a clear and concise message that can easily be interpreted and taken from your presentation.
- B. Your points need to connect and lead from one into the other, so the audience has a story to follow. This helps them to remember information more easily and express what you're trying to say.
- C. Before getting started on your presentation, you want to learn as much as possible about the subject you're going to speak about. Become as much an expert as is reasonable to expect.
- D. Presentations should certainly be professional, but they can also benefit from adding a bit of informality to the proceedings. Being comfortable with the material allows you to be open to a bit of naturalism when presenting which makes for a much more engaging talk.
- E. Getting across all the necessary information in your presentation is important but keeping the whole things to a reasonable length is also important.
- F. Prepare thoroughly and come ready to do the best job you can. The right attitude can make a big difference.
- G. Delivering the topic with passion can often translate into your audience forming their own interest in the subject.

memo

Dear Team,

As you know, you are all making presentations for potential new investors next week. Please take the time to review the following guidelines – we need these presentations to be organized, accurate and professional.

- Start by introducing yourself and your subject. Outline the different sections of your presentation.
- When you finish a section, summarize it. Make it clear that you are moving on to a new section.
- Use diagrams where possible. You can show these on handouts or on slides. Refer to them in the presentation using phrases such as “As you can see in the diagram...”
- At the end, tell the audience you’re finished and invite them to ask questions.
- Don’t read your presentation from your notes. You need to maintain eye contact with the audience.
- Prepare and practice with your co-workers! Make helpful suggestions to each other before the big day.

Good luck!

Janice

Read the memo on the left and answer the questions below:

- What would you need to keep the audience captivated?
- How can you give the audience an overview of the presentation?
- What do you need to do to demonstrate knowledge of the topic?

Vocabulary reinforcement
